Tackling violence affecting young people and communities

One Flow One Brent (OFOB)

Until very recently, there have been too few opportunities available to young people to be heard, influence or develop solutions related to violence and how it affects young people living on three estates, Chalkhill, Stonebridge and Church End. With the support of the Young Brent Foundation, housing providers, the local authority and the VRU, young people will be able to influence neighbourhood planning and services and the wider youth and community offer for Brent.

Working with a range of different partners who are motivated to work together towards a common goal will enable young people to use a collective voice to address the structural change needed to tackle the drivers of violence.

It's our collective responsibility to listen to the experiences of young people with a focus on those voices that are under represented, marginalised and often not heard.

Connecting our dreams, hopes and futures

Funding Guidance

OFOB is looking forward to hearing your ideas and partnering with organisations who like us are committed to ensuring that children and young people are part of the solution to addressing the drivers of violence in our communities. Organisations should be able to demonstrate that they are currently able to engage children and young people from Chalkhill, Church End and Stonebridge.

What we will fund

1

Projects which focus on young women's experience of violence. Providing youth voice opportunities

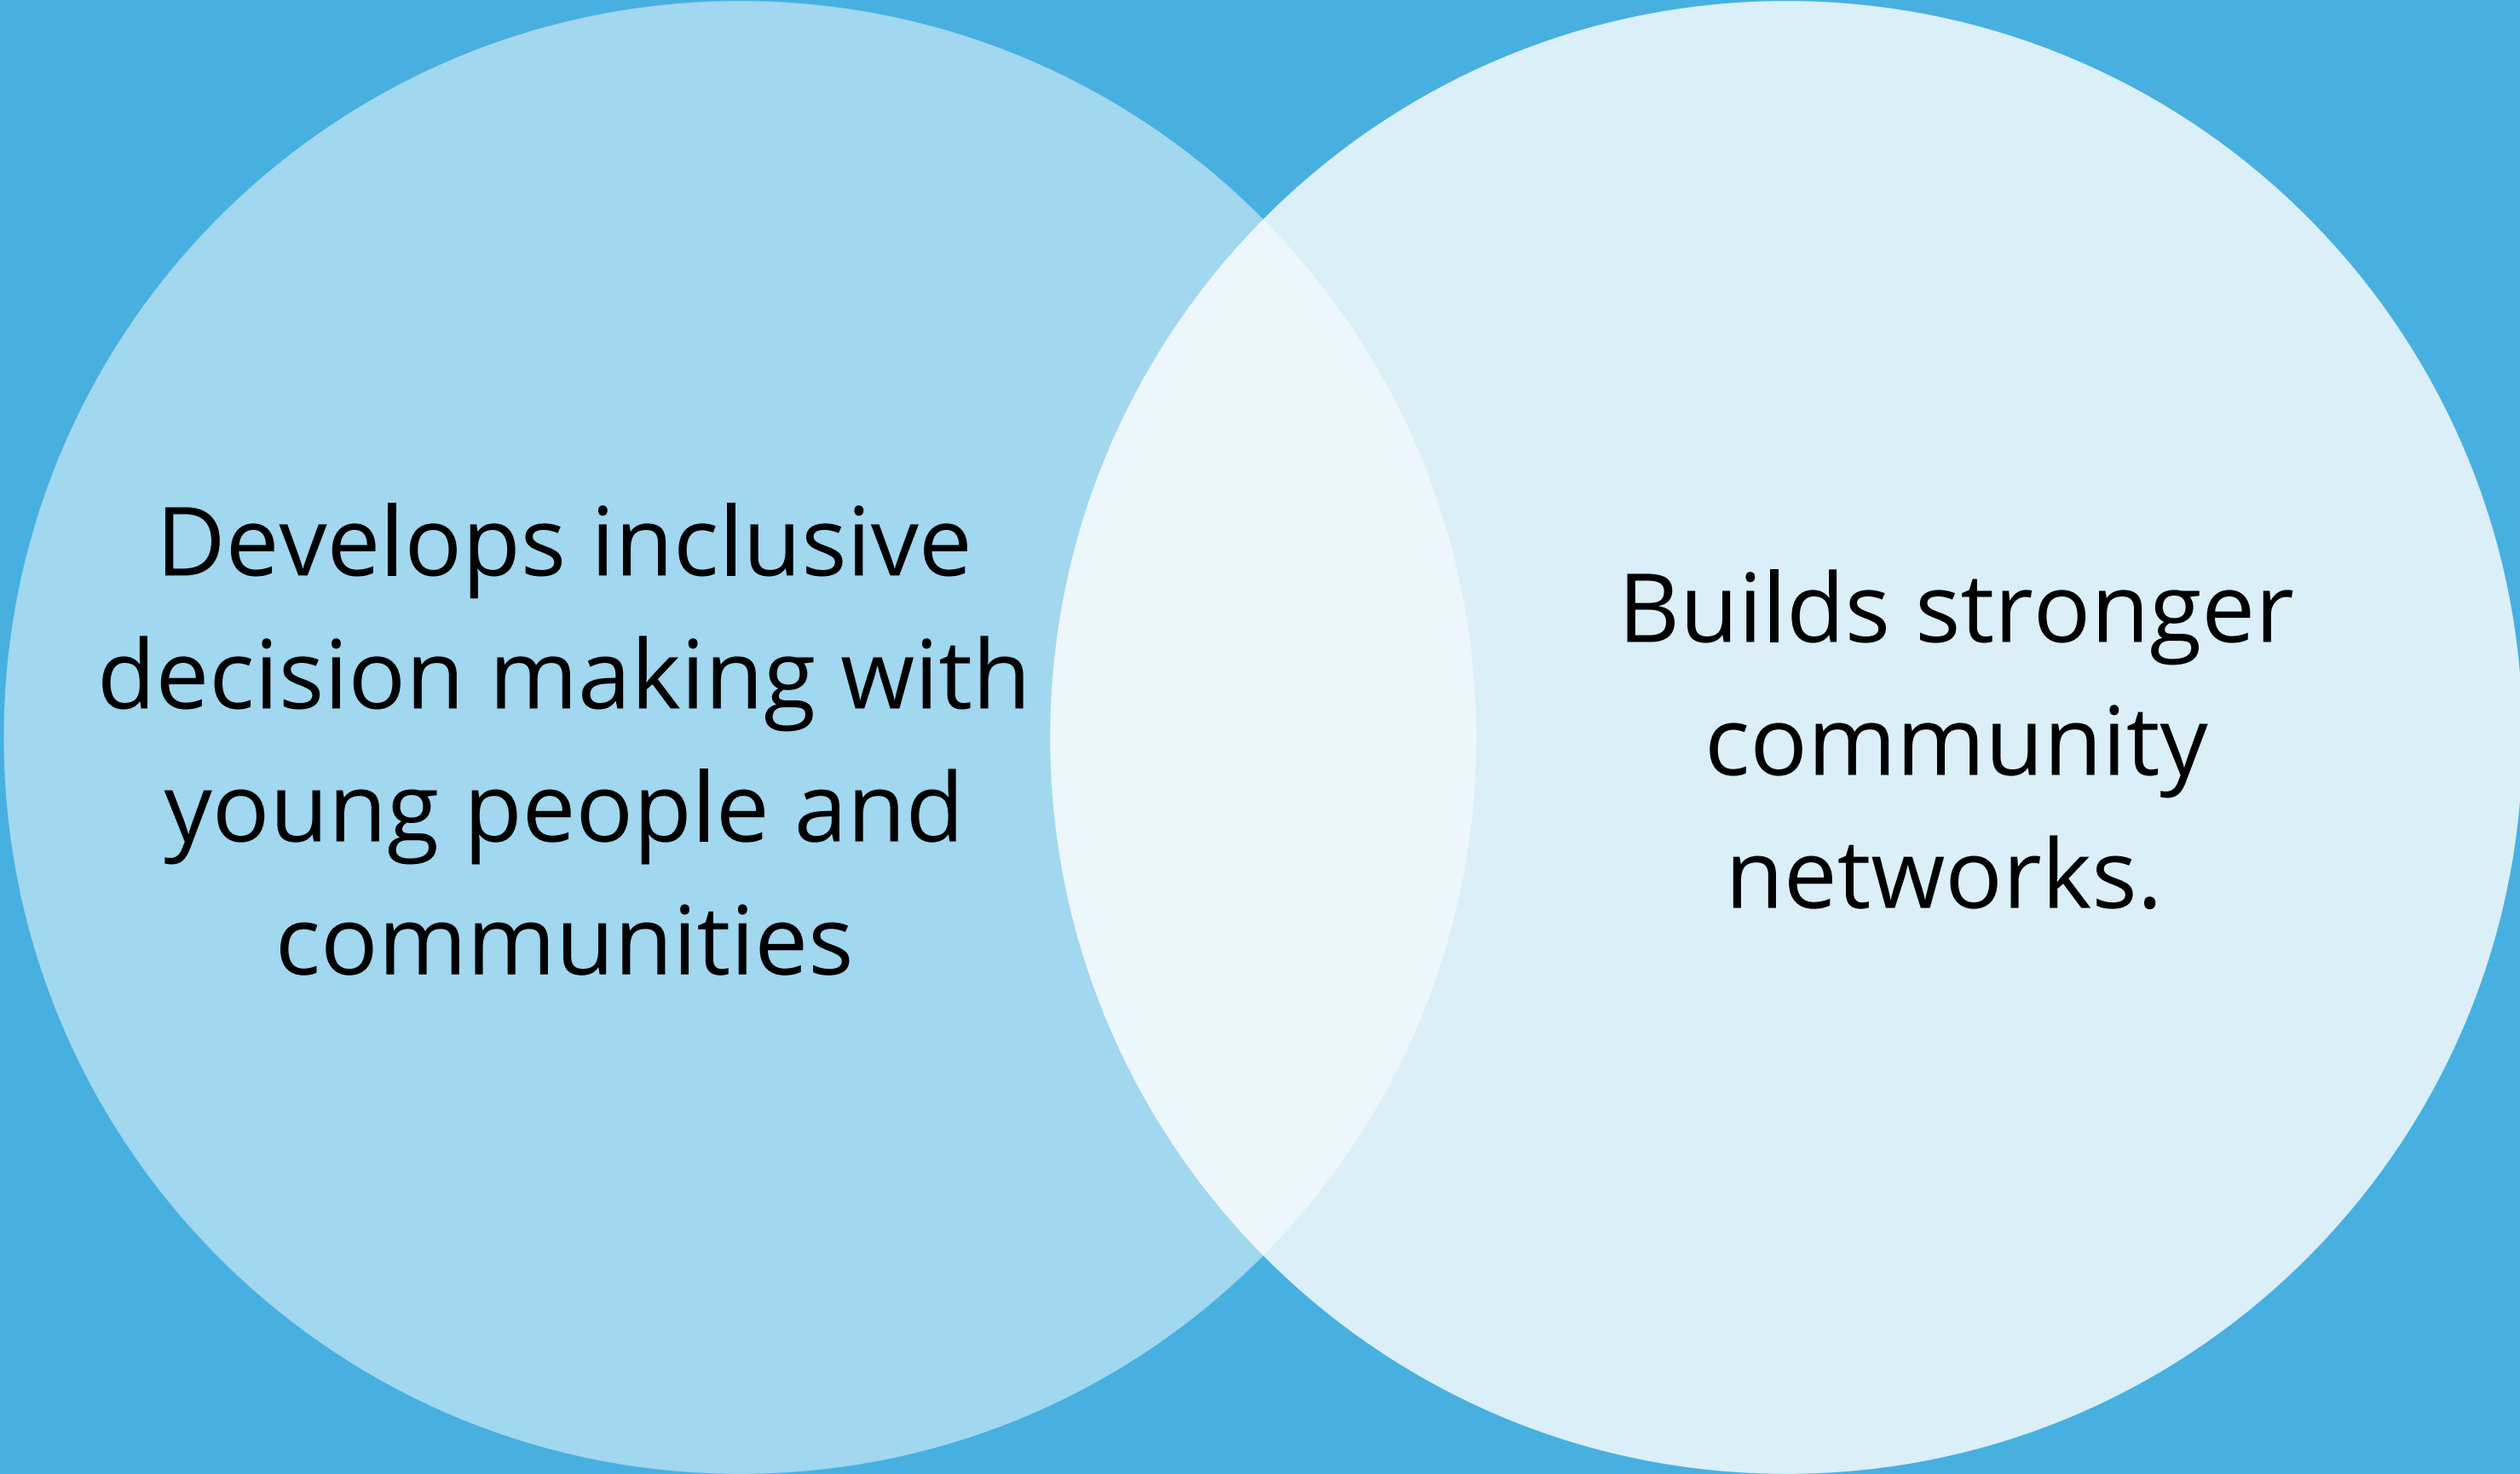

2

Projects which support transition from primary to secondary school. In particular, healthy relationships and developing agency

3

Projects which support designing out crime in the target areas
This could include consultations, events or campaigns

Your project will need to demonstrate how it can achieve one or both of these outcomes

Develops inclusive decision making with young people and communities

Builds stronger community networks.
